Hardwood Manufacturers, Inc.

Dear AHMI Consumer member:

In a changing business environment where customers are seeking more documentation about the source of your lumber and products, Appalachian Hardwood Manufacturers, Inc. has developed a new program to answer those questions, save you time and help you sell lumber. The Appalachian Hardwood Verified Legal (AHVL) program provides a process to confirm that you are a legal entity in the United States and adhere to the rule of law, verify your products are legally sourced, and a simple procedure where a local certified public accountant can third-party audit your adherence to the standards.

This program is designed to meet the basic demands of the European Union Timber Requirements (EUTR) and other countries. AHMI members have received notice from European customers that further documentation is needed to meet the regulations. The AHMI Board of Trustees approved this program to answer the European requirements and what may follow from Australia and other countries.

This marketing initiative follows the successful Appalachian Hardwood Verified Sustainable which marks its eighth year in 2014 with more than three-fourths of AHMI members participating. We hope to have the same results with Verified Legal.

Enclosed you will find:

- Appalachian Hardwood Verified Legal (AHVL) Declaration adopted by AHMI;
- AHVL requirements and the AHVL audit procedure performed by AHMI or a designee if required by your customer;
- AHVL certificate to provide to your customer;
- AHVL Procurement form for landowners or loggers to complete. This information can also be added to log tally forms or landowner contracts.

I look forward to working with you on this initiative. If you have questions, please contact me immediately.

Regards,
